Langford Family Donates Endowed Chair

Langford

The George R. Langford Family Eminent Scholar Chair in Municipal Corporations was announced in December by FSU President Bernard Sliger.

A gift of $600,000 from the Langford family will be matched by a $420,000 contribution from the State's Eminent Scholar Trust Fund to endow the Chair. "To my knowledge," said Dean Sandy D'Alemberte, "there is no other Eminent Scholar Chair focused directly on Municipal Corporations Law in any other school in the United States."

A Tallahassee businessman with a law degree from the University of Virginia, Langford is well known for his civic activities and for his dedication to FSU programs. He is Chairman of the Board of the FSU Foundation, past president of the Seminole Boosters and a charter member of the President's Club.

A search committee will be appointed to recommend a scholar to occupy the chair. Langford said, "We hope the creation of this chair will attract outstanding students who aspire to a career in local government law."

Langford is chairman of the board of the Municipal Code Corporation, a legal publishing firm he

Wilner Chosen as Visitor Under Ed Ball Chair in International Law

The College of Law's first eminent scholar chair, the Ed Ball Chair in International Law, is currently sponsoring the visit of Professor Gabriel Wilner. Professor Wilner, the Thomas Kirbo Professor of Law at the University of Georgia, directs studies at the Hague Academy of International Law and at an annual Brussels Seminar on the Law of the European Economic Community. He has done extensive work with the United Nations and is considered an expert in transfer of technology, international arbitration, and har-

From The President

I am pleased to report to you on several significant events which have occurred since the last newsletter.

First, the Caribbean Law Institute is now a reality. As reported earlier, this cooperative education program is spearheaded by the College of Law and the West Indies Faculty in Barbados. In order to begin the Institute, funds were sought from the United States Congress. I am pleased to report that Congress has approved a $1.5 million appropriation to begin the program. It is estimated that the cost of the program will be $1.5 million per year, and we have obtained assurances that we can rely on funding for five years. Thereafter, the program will be funded by private sources who have business interests in the Caribbean. Dean D'Alemberte deserves our congratulations for lobbying the appropriation. Particular thanks should be given to the Florida Delegation in Congress, particularly Congressman Bill Lehman. If you have the opportunity to thank your local congressman, please do this so that they will know that we appreciate their help in funding this excellent program. As you know, the purpose of the Institute is to organize and promote the reform and codification of laws in the Caribbean basin, with particular attention to the laws of trade and commerce.

Second, we are extremely pleased to announce that the George R. Langford family has committed to establish an Eminent Scholar chair in Municipal Corporations at the College of Law. The $1 million endowed faculty position is made possible by a $600,000 contribution from the Langfords, matched by a $420,000 contribution from the State's Eminent Scholar Trust Fund.

Mr. Langford is a Tallahassee businessman with a Juris Doctor degree from the University of Virginia. He is Chairman of the Board of FSU Foundation, Past-President of the Seminole Boosters and a Charter Member of the President's Club.

This may be the first Eminent Scholar Chair in Municipal Corporations in any law school in the United States. A search committee will be appointed in the near future to recommend a scholar to occupy the Chair. The Law School is to be congratulated for its efforts in obtaining funding for the Chair.

Third, construction continues on the addition to the Law School which will complete the Village on the Green project. We are hopeful that the project will be completed in time for the Alumni Weekend. Last year's Alumni Weekend was very successful, and we look forward to the next Alumni Weekend which is scheduled for September 23 and 24, 1988. Professor Ehrhardt will conduct a seminar on Federal Practice on the 23rd. Many special events are planned. Please make your reservations early as we expect a large turnout.

We look forward to seeing you at the annual meeting of the Alumni Association and the Board of Directors at the Florida Bar Convention in June. We plan to host our annual reception and alumni breakfast during the course of the convention. More specific information will be forthcoming.

Finally, I am pleased to report that the Alumni Directory has been printed and forwarded to all graduates. The publication of this Directory has resulted in the computerization of the Law School alumni records and will make it much easier for us to communicate with you in the future. The Directory was published by Elora Harwood's Placement/Alumni Affairs Office, and Kimberly Boyd, Assistant Director, is to be congratulated for undertaking and completing this yeoman task.

I look forward to seeing you at the Bar Convention in June.

Caribbean Law Institute Receives Congressional Funding

The Caribbean Law Institute is now a reality. The cooperative education program spearheaded by the Florida State University College of Law and the West Indies Faculty of Law in Barbados, has received $1.5 million from the U.S. Congress.

The purpose of the Institute is to organize and promote the reform and codification of laws in the Caribbean Basin, with particular attention to laws of trade and commerce.

FSU Law Dean Talbot "Sandy" D'Alemberte stated that the institute will be a unifying force in the Caribbean for nations interested in trade in the region.

"We are thrilled with the vote of confidence in the form of funding from the Congress," said

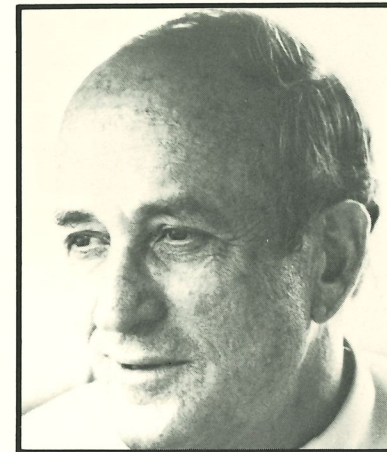

"I was very impressed with the way our Florida congressional delegation worked ..."

D'Alemberte. "Our success with the Caribbean Law Institute is due in large part to the efforts of Senator Chiles, Senator Graham, Congressman Bill Lehman (D-Fla) and other supporters of the Institute in Washington. I was very impressed with the way our Florida congressional delegation worked to fund this significant project."

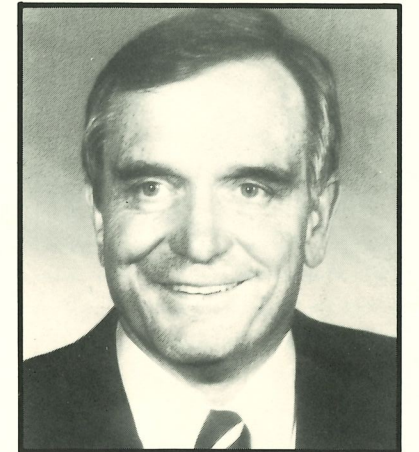

The cost of the Caribbean Law Institute is estimated at $1.5 million per year for five years. After five years, the funding will be reviewed and CLI will attempt to develop funding from private sources including practitioners and businesses involved with trade in the Caribbean.

The Executive Director of the Caribbean Law Institute will be Professor Elwin Griffith.

Village Green Completion Remains on Target

The Village Green construction is on schedule, and a summer 1988 completion date is expected. Two completely restored houses are on site and are being used for offices, small seminars, and receptions.

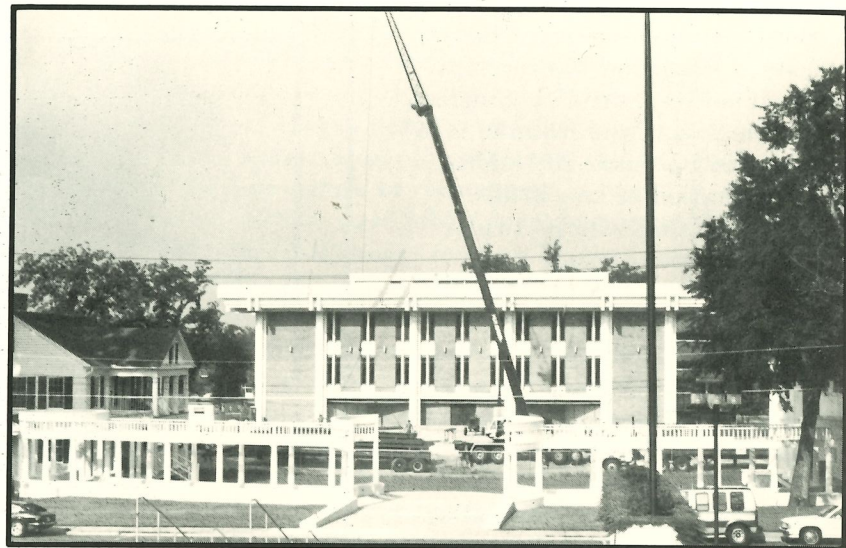

A third house, the Damon-Lewis House, was moved to the site on January 19, 1988. The house was originally built in 1937 and located on the corner of Duval and College Avenue. Many of you will remember that it was once Vardi's Gift Shop and also the home of Harold Lewis's law firm. The City of Tallahassee donated the house to the College of Law to make way for a large hotel and parking garage complex opposite City Hall.

The exterior of the Rotunda Building is almost completed, and it is now possible to visualize what has been only an architect's drawing for the past two years. The Rotunda and the Village Green, when completed, will be a source of great pride for Florida State University as well as the City of Tallahassee.

The College of Law is very grateful to the many supporters of this project and asks that you continue to make contributions toward the furniture fund. It is hoped that the first floors of each of the houses can be furnished in keeping with their historic beginnings.

Contractor Jerry Albritton, Assistant to the Dean JoAnn Blackwell and Dean Sandy D'Alemberte record their signatures in the concrete foundation of the rotunda addition.

The Sarah Payne Cawthon House

Built in 1834, the Sarah Payne Cawthon House is of Greek Revival Style, having square Doric Columns which form an entrance portico. Simplicity is one of the best features of the house. The interiors are grand in scale, with 12 foot ceilings and large, well proportioned windows.

The house is a two story structure with a wide hallway and large rooms. The original house had stairs leading from the first floor to a basement dining room. The kitchen was a separate building in the backyard. And there was not one closet in the entire house!

In 1924, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Harrison bought the house and made several changes to make it more livable and up-to-date. During the next 25 years, the house became a center for social life in Tallahassee. The Harrison daughters' wedding receptions were held in the "twin parlors" of the main floor and countless dignitaries, governors and foreign royalty were entertained. It was the epitome of gracious living.

The house was bought in the late 1960's by Sarah Payne Cawthon after demolition had already begun. However, two of the original mantels are still there, and the original heart-pine floors exist in the downstairs hall and the upstairs rooms.

Donated in 1986 to the College of Law by Sarah Payne Cawthon's two daughters, Mrs. Sarah Shaw and Judge Anne Booth, the house was moved to the Village Green and restored to its former beauty.

The Johnson-Caldwell House

The Johnson-Caldwell House was built before 1850 by George C. Johnson during a time of prosperity brought on by rising cotton prices. Around 1900, the land around the house was developed as a pecan orchard, and the house served as the manager's home.

Millard Caldwell bought the house when the pecan company's lands were being sold off in 1941. At that time, he was serving in the U.S. House of Representatives. He became Governor of Florida in 1945, Florida Supreme Court Justice in 1962, and Chief Justice in 1967. Mrs. Mary Caldwell continued to occupy the house until her death in February 1986.

The Johnson-Caldwell house is typical of Greek Revival residences built in the North Florida area in the 19th century. It is a 2½ story wood frame structure with a gable roof. Nearly all of the interior woodwork is original. There are four-panel doors throughout the house, and the flooring is heart pine. The original windows are six-over-six double hung sashes. Two interior crosswall chimneys provide back-to-back fireplaces on each floor.

In July 1986, the house was donated to the College of Law by Mrs. Sally Caldwell McCord and moved from its original location on Old Bainbridge Road to the Village Green. Now fully restored, the Johnson-Caldwell House was dedicated on May 15, 1987, and stands ready for use by the College of Law.

The parlor of the Caldwell house has been furnished with some of the original furniture.

Weekend Alumni Events Draw Large Crowd

Bill Bryant addressed alumni at the Brunch.

Alumni enjoyed a good breakfast during the Reunion.

DCA Judge Jim Jorgenson visited with Dean D'Alemberte at the Saturday Brunch.

Prior to the Brunch, alumni gathered at the Conference Center to visit.

More than two hundred law school alumni returned to their alma mater for Homecoming and Reunion Weekend on Friday and Saturday, October 30 and 31, 1987.

On Friday night, the Class of 1977 celebrated its Tenth Year Reunion with a banquet at the Tallahassee Hilton. Dean D'Alemberte joined the group to bring them up to date on events at the College of Law. Thanks go to Jim Cunningham of Orlando for his efforts in coordinating this event.

The featured speaker for the Alumni Reunion Brunch on Saturday morning was Bill Bryant (Class of 1974), Special Counsel to the Governor. An attentive audience listened carefully to his remarks concerning the current medical malpractice issues.

Bryant described the efforts of the Academic Task Force to assemble the best information ever on the entire torts and insurance system with special emphasis on medical malpractice. He pointed out that one reason doctors and lawyers have difficulty in reaching an agreement is that the socialization process of physicians is different from that of lawyers; lawyers are trained in language, to be articulate and logical, where doctors are in the laboratory. Misunderstanding results.

"Compromise" said Bryant, "is not a word that is valued in those (highly specialized) fields where we have the problem." He went on to say that lawyers can better understand conflicting views and have a special responsibility to understand and to use a more gentle approach.

Among the guests present at the Brunch were Chief Justice Parker Lee McDonald, Justice and Mrs.

to relax and visit prior to the football game. Members of the Student Bar Association assisted with the party and visited with alumni. Special thanks go to first year students Susan Miller and Al Kelley for help with refreshments and clean-up.

Good weather, good food and good friends all combined for a successful alumni weekend. Topping it all off was the FSU football team's victory over Tulane!

The Moot Court party was held near the Cawthon House on the Village Green.

Moot Court Alumni Enjoy Homecoming Crab Fest

Moot Court Alumni gathered from all around for the Annual Crab Claw Fest on Homecoming Weekend in October. Held at the Cawthon House on the Village Green, the event was a big success. The snow crab claws were excellent as usual, and the feast included buffalo wings and drinks.

The event also celebrated the selection of new team members Jason Burnett, Alex Douglas, Jim Hodes and Robin Suarez. They were welcomed by team members and alumni.

The Crab Claw Fest was a big success, thanks to the continued support of alumni.

1988 Alumni Directory Published

The 1988 Alumni Directory was completed and published in February. It not only contains an alphabetical listing of alumni addresses but is also broken down by graduating class and by geographical location.

The Directory is the culmination of efforts to compile a master computer address file within the College of Law. Currently, all alumni have been entered into this file, and changes now can be made as they occur.

The credit for this project goes to Ms. Kimberly Boyd, Assistant Placement Director, who spent untold hours pursuing graduates, compiling information, proofing, verifying, and developing the computer programs necessary to produce the information needed for the Directory.

Local Alumni Chapters Approved

At the Alumni Board of Directors meeting last October, approval was granted to petitions filed by alumni in Orlando, Pensacola and Jacksonville. These join the local chapter previously established in Tampa.

On January 22, Bill Johnson organized an alumni reception and organizational meeting in Orlando to kick off the local chapter. Dean D'Alemberte was present to commend and encourage the group.

Officers were elected with Tom Pepler ('79) named as President and Anne Marie Bowen ('87) as Vice President. Selected as Secretary was Pam Mark ('87), and Tom Ramsberger ('87) was elected Treasurer.

Receptions will be held soon in both Jacksonville and Pensacola. If you are in any of these areas, you will want to become a part of the local chapter. Your time and talent are needed, and you will enjoy being with friends and former classmates.

RECOGNITION

WC Section Chair Gerald Rosenthal presents a check from the Institute to Dean D'Alemberte.

Workers Compensation Institute Recognizes College of Law

At a luncheon sponsored by the Workers Compensation Institute in December, the Institute recognized the Florida State University College of Law for its distinction as the only Florida law school to have workers compensation law as part of its regular curriculum.

A check from the Institute for $10,000 was accepted by Dean Sandy D'Alemberte on behalf of the College of Law.

Present at the luncheon were

Workers Comp Chief Commissioner Shirley Walker, WCI Chair Jim McConaughay, WCI Director David Parrish, WCI Educational Program Chair Steve Rissman, WC Section Chair Gerald Rosenthal and WC Senior Deputy Commissioner A.S. Fontaine. Also attending were former Justice Fred Karl, First DCA Judge Ed Barfield, Dean Sandy D'Alemberte and Associate Dean John Yetter.

Craine Wins Attorneys' Title Award

Taking the prize for the best legal paper on a subject related to real property law was Biff Craine, a recent graduate of the College of Law and winner of the Law Student Awards Program sponsored by the Attorneys' Title Insurance Fund, Inc. Craine's paper was titled "Sellers' Liability for Nondisclosure of Real Property Defects."

In addition to sponsoring the Awards Program, Attorneys' Title provides annual grants of $1000 to each of Florida's six law schools. The money is used to support teaching of real property law or to assist in research in the real property field.

Tom Abrams Appointed to House Advisory Committee

Tom Abrams, a third-year student in the FSU College of Law, was appointed in August by the Speaker of the Florida House of Representatives, Jon Mills, to be a member of the House Advisory Committee on the Future of Florida.

Formed in 1986, the committee was organized to review ways to improve the state's future. Abrams is one of 50 people from around the state to serve on the committee.

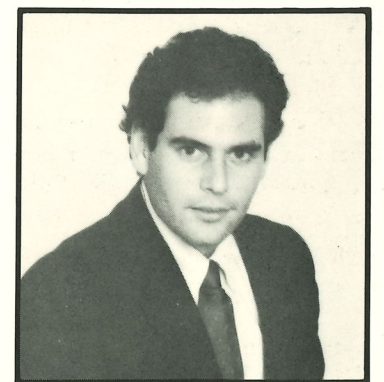

Abrams was president of the FSU Student Government Association

Class of 1987 COIF Members Named

Sixteen members of the Class of 1987 have been elected to membership in the Order of the Coif, the only national legal honor society.

Under the national constitution of Coif, students who have completed at least 75% of their law studies in graded courses and who rank in the top 10% of the class are eligible for election. The FSU bylaws state that the Chapter shall consider not only grades but also the total contribution made by the student to the common good of the College of Law and of the legal community. Such contributions include but are not limited to membership on the Law Review, the Law Journal or Moot Court.

Those selected for membership are J. Marleen Ahearn, Cindy Bartin, Osmer D. Batcheller, Meredith Charbula, Ellen Gwynn, Charles Alan Lawson, Pamela A. Mark, Carol Peacock, David Powell, J. Layne Smith, LuAnn Snider, Matthew S. Steffey, Donna L. Waters, Michael West and Claire E. Winold.

Abrams

during 1983-84 and holds a bachelor's degree in International Affairs from FSU. He worked as a law clerk last summer in the Miami law firm of Kelly, Frey, Warren, Smathers and Thompson.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Parents and Partners Day Draws Crowd

Parents and partners of law students arrived early for the third annual Parents and Partners Day on Saturday, October 17, 1987, at B. K. Roberts Hall. Welcoming them was John Eagen, Student Bar Vice-president, and Dean Sandy D'Alemberte.

Tours of the law building were provided by SBA members, and members of Law Partners set up shop in the student lounge to sell College of Law T-shirts and sweat shirts.

Highlighting the day was the experience of attending a mock class taught by Professor Powell. Associate Dean John Yetter welcomed everyone to the class and introduced Dean Sandy D'Alemberte. "At FSU," said D'Alemberte, "We try to take the very best students and give them the very best training." He introduced Professor Powell who discussed Amory v. Delamire, an old English case. The question and answer period which followed proved to be lively and interesting for the parents and partners.

Following the class, students and their guests were treated to lunch on the Village Green. Members of Law Partners served as hosts and hostesses.

Associate Dean John Yetter visits with DCA Judge Doug Shivers at the Bells Across America Ceremony.

Ashley Peacock signs in with his parents on Parents and Partners Day.

Parents and partners attended a class taught by Professor Powell.

Bells Across America Ceremony Held on Village Green

"Bells Across America: The Sounds of Freedom" was the theme of a Bicentennial Bell Ringing which took place on Thursday, September 17, 1987, on a Village Green decorated with red, white and blue bunting and filled with bright balloons.

For 200 seconds, the old bell from the Caldwell House was rung, joining a nationwide bell ringing in celebration of the 200th birthday of the Constitution of the United States. The bell was rung by Chief Judge Larry Smith of the First District Court of Appeal. Following the ringing, 200 seconds of silence and meditation on what the Constitution means was observed.

A Constitutional reading was presented by Professor Michael Richey of the FSU School of Theatre who read excerpts from "The Bill of Rights in Action," from A Living Bill of Rights, by former Justice William O. Douglas.

The celebration was co-sponsored by the College of Law and the Tallahassee Bar Association. Attending the celebration was former ABA President William Reece Smith who later served as keynote speaker at a dinner held by the Tallahassee Bar.

Guests and participants were invited to remain for lemonade and cookies, and tours of the Cawthon and Caldwell houses were conducted.

The 1987-88 Legal Studies Workshop series continues through the Spring Semester with a number of interesting topics. Organized by Professor Adam Hirsch, the series is open to faculty members from all departments and disciplines in the University. The program continues to provoke interest and promote inter-disciplinary dialogue.

The program in January featured Mike Bayles, Professor of Philosophy, who spoke on "Alternative Models of Procedural Justice." In February, Peter Mirfield, Visiting Professor from Oxford, England, chose the topic, "Criminal Confessions in England and America." Professor of History Ralph Turner will speak on "Roots of the Common Law: Legal Learning in the Age of Glanville" at the March workshop.

D'Alemberte Endorsed by Florida Bar and Alumni Board for ABA Presidency

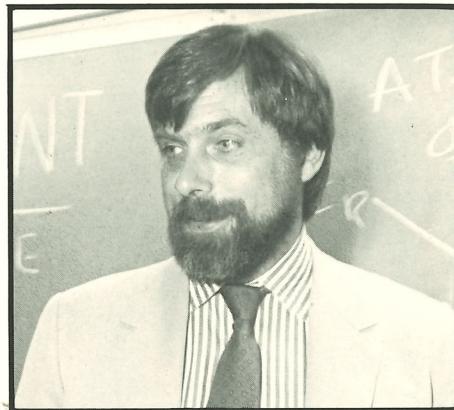

The candidacy of Talbot "Sandy" D'Alemberte for the presidency of the American Bar Association has received the unanimous endorsement of the Board of Governors of the Florida Bar. Similarly, the Board of Directors of the College of Law Alumni Association voted in October to support the Dean's candidacy.

Florida's ABA state delegate for the past seven years, D'Alemberte is seeking to become the Association's president-elect for 1990-91.

"Recognizing the distinguished service and leadership provided by Talbot Sandy D'Alemberte, and being confident that he will ably serve the American Bar Association as its president, the members of the Board of Governors of the Florida Bar hereby unanimously endorse . . . this outstanding lawyer for nomination and election to that high office," read the board of governor's resolution. D'Alemberte has held a long list of leadership positions in the ABA. He also served as president of the American Judicature Society during 1982-84. He was this year's recipient of The Florida Bar Foundation's Medal of Honor.

Staff Notes

Alva T. Stone made a presentation at the annual meeting of the American Association of Law Libraries in Chicago in July, 1987. She also gave a presentation at the annual meeting of the Florida State Court and County Law Libraries Association at Lakeland in October, 1987.

Weidner and Jacobs Assist Students with IRS Suits

Tax professors Joe Jacobs and Don Weidner have gotten the attention of the Internal Revenue Service through their efforts to assist 32 FSU graduate students hit with audits on their 1984 taxes.

The students had been ordered to pay $500 to $1,500 apiece. They are graduate assistants who received stipends for research and training. FSU, like many universities, does not withhold taxes when students' earnings are for teaching or research required for completion of a degree.

The filing of law suits in the U.S. Tax court has prompted the suspension of audits in the district and an expected visit from a legal representative of the IRS district office in Jacksonville. The meeting was requested to better understand the university's financial-support process for graduate students.

The Chronicle of Higher Education, considered the Wall Street Journal of academia, said that the FSU lawsuits prompted the IRS to back off.

Professor Joe Jacobs is recovering from recent surgery. He will return to teaching in the summer semester.

Professors Arrested to Benefit the Cancer Society

WANTED: Bill VanDercreek

(Reprinted from Law Notes, a publication of the Student Bar Association, November 4, 1987)

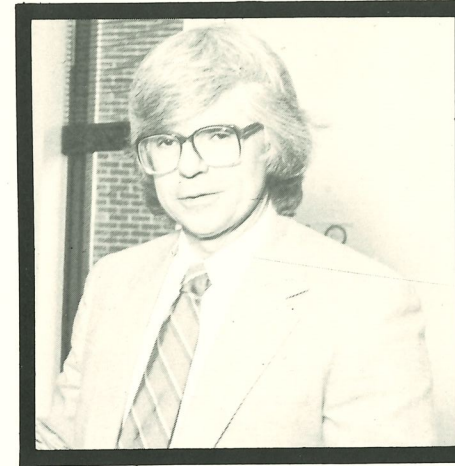

It was a week like any other week at the FSU College of Law. Students and Faculty were carrying out their familiar chores. Then we got the call. Law Professors were in trouble with the law. Florida Law Notes Staff set about to collect the facts, just the facts. Below is an account of what we found. The names have NOT been changed to protect the innocent. There are no innocents.

Day 1: Yetter Caught
The Crime: Pushing friends & students to the brink. Forcing them to turn him in to save others.

The Charges: High crimes & misdemeanors; Drunk and Disorderly conduct.

The Arrest: Officer Brian Posey attempts the arrest during Evidence. Yetter denies the charges, refuses to accompany the officer and asks "How much do I have to pay to get out of this?"

Bail & Appeal: Initial bail set at $500 but additional charges of Resisting Arrest and Attempting to bribe an officer of the Court cause the bail to be raised to $1000.

WANTED: John Yetter

Yetter is seen walking the halls soliciting contributions with Officer Posey at his side. Professors VanDercreek and McHugh contribute checks to his bail while others pat their pockets for change.

Day 2: VanDercreek and Alfini Nabbed

The Crime: Having friends and students who harbor the secret desire to see them carried away and put behind bars for a good cause.

The Charges: Lewd and Lascivious Behavior; Drunkenness and Disorderliness; Mental Cruelty.

The Arrest: VanDercreek admits to the charges. Alfini agrees to testify for the government and procures plane tickets via the witness protection program leaving VanDercreek to face the joint alone.

Bail & Appeal: Bail set at $600. VanDercreek asks Yetter to return the previous day's favor. Yetter is not disposed to help and asks him to leave because there is still five minutes of class left.

The Escape: Minutes later VanDercreek is seen roaming the halls sans handcuffs. Will we ever know how he got out of this one?

Sixteenth Oxford Summer Program Scheduled

The College of Law will sponsor its sixteenth Summer Program in law at Oxford from June 27 to August 4, 1988. The program will offer students an opportunity to study comparative law, EEC law, French civil law and the development of the English Common Law where it all began.

The program is open to law students in good standing and to graduates of approved law schools interested in enhancing their legal education. In 1987, eighty-eight Canadian and U.S. law students attended Florida State's program, the oldest of the six approved in Oxford.

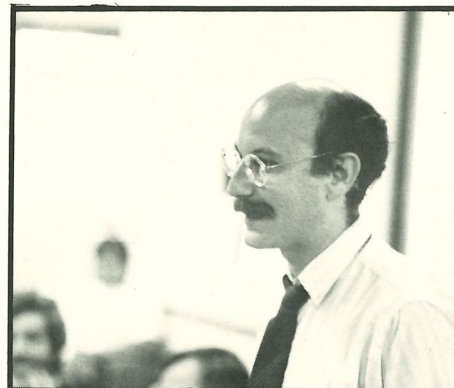

Six two-hour courses will be offered, four taught by tenured faculty members of the University of Oxford and two taught by FSU faculty. Oxford faculty include Jeffrey Hackney, who has taught in the program since 1974, John Bell, Daniel Prentice and Derrick Wyatt who taught at the College of Law in Fall 1987. FSU faculty will be Jack Van Doren and Joshua Morse.

This is a chance to learn about the law while residing in Oxford, one of the greatest architectural and cultural treasures of the world. Cost of registration, tuition, room, board and program fees is approximately $2,400, depending on the dollar/pound exchange rate prevailing on April 1, 1988.

For a program brochure and further information, contact Associate Dean Edwin M. Schroeder, College of Law, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL 32306, 904/644-4578.

Brown Bag Series Continues for a Second Year

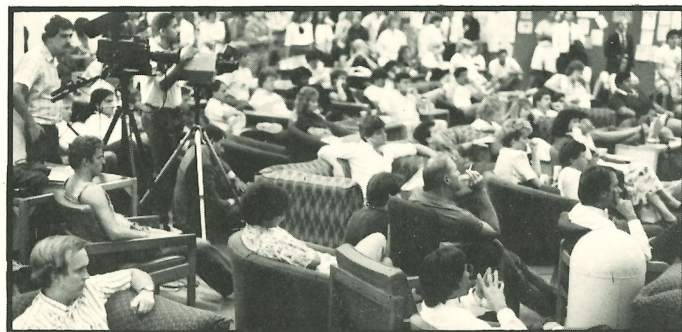

The most popular Brown Bag of the Fall Semester proved to be the Bork Nomination Debate featuring Lee S. Liberman of the George Mason School of Law and our own Professor Steven G. Gey. Pat Leary, Assistant Director of the Policy Studies Clinic, moderated the lively debate which was attended by an overflowing crowd including TV reporters from local stations.

torney General. Judge Earle Zehmer of the first District Court of Appeal also appeared to speak on the merits of judicial clerkships.

Steven L. Seliger, Recipient of the Tobias Simon Pro Bono Award, was present in September, along with Chief Justice Parker Lee McDonald, to talk to an audience of future lawyers about the importance of pro bono.

A large crowd attended the Bork debate which was videotaped by the law school.

Professor Liberman (at podium) and Professor Steve Gey (seated right) debated the Bork nomination which was moderated by Pat Leary (seated, center).

Congressman Bill Grant stopped by the College of Law during a visit to Tallahassee in September. Speaking to a large crowd in the student lounge, Rep. Grant commented on several current issues and then accepted questions from the audience. Students were pleased that the Congressman took time to visit with several of them individually before leaving for a tour of the campus.

Mike Huey

Career Opportunities and Interview Skills Workshops were presented for the benefit of second and third year students who were beginning the on-campus interview process. Among those local attorneys who willingly gave of their time and expertise by appearing on the panels were Mike Huey of Huey, Guilday, Kuersteiner and Tucker; David S. Dee of the Carlton, Fields law firm; Robert Crabtree of Fuller and Johnson; Carlos Alvarez of the Hopping, Boyd law firm; and Gerald Cunningham from the Office of the At-

Jayne Brady, Director of the Guardian Ad Litem Program, made a presentation in September.

Lewis Crippen, Esq. and Nada McGinnis of the Gunster, Yoakley law firm in West Palm Beach presented "Legal Interviews and Opportunities," a program designed to provide information on interviewing skills and summer associate programs.

Lisa Maile of IMAGE POWER presented a lively program dealing with proper professional dress and its importance in the business world. Her vivacious presentation drew a large crowd of lawyers-to-be.

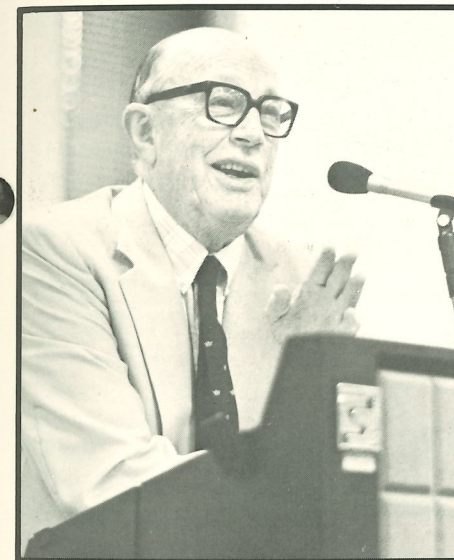

John Moore

Jayne Brady

John Moore of the Florida Board of Bar Examiners and William Bald, member of the Board of Bar Examiners, visited in October. They discussed the philosophy of the Bar Examiners and provided information on applying for the Bar Exam.

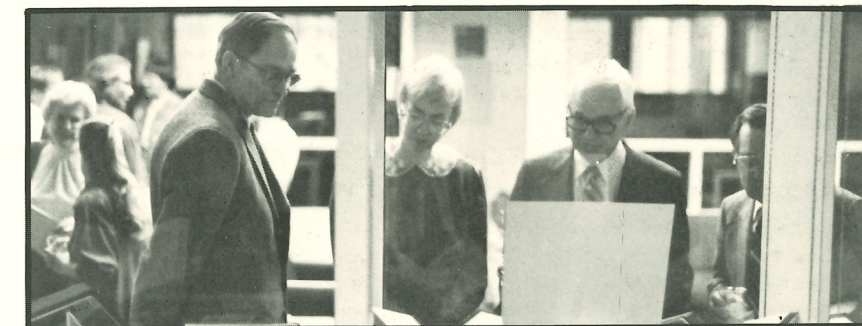

Chesterfield Smith, Past President of the American Bar Association, brought the Brown Bag series to a successful conclusion. He spoke on "Genius of the American Constitution," a topic which coincided with the Bicentennial of the Constitution.

G. H. L. Le May

G.H.L. Le May, Senior Tutor from Oxford, England, appeared at a Brown Bag which was co-sponsored by the Center for Professional Development. He was introduced by Professor Peter Mirfield who is visiting the law school this year from England. Professor Le May's topic was "Should Britain Adopt a Bill of Rights Similar to the U.S.A.?"

Dr. David Pargman of the Department of Movement Sciences gave an interesting lecture on "Exercise: Implications for Stress Management—Psychological Perspectives."

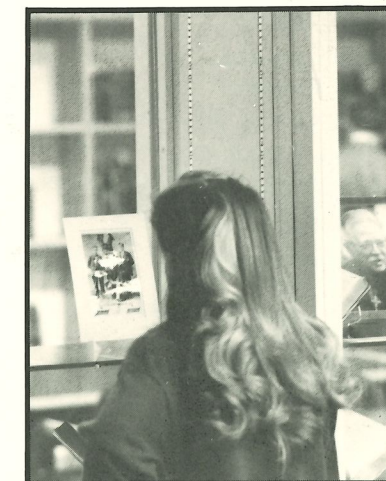

Associate Dean Schroeder, Public Services Librarian Robin Gault, and Attorney Robert Ervin view the Exhibit.

Law Library Opens Roscoe Pound Exhibit

On January 5, 1988, the College of Law Library marked the opening of an exhibition of selections from the library of Roscoe Pound, former dean of the Harvard Law School and a giant among American legal philosophers. The exhibit is provided by the American Trial Lawyers Association.

Local justices, judges, members of the Bar, faculty and friends were invited to an opening reception to view the exhibition. The exhibit, displayed in the Rare Book Room, continued through February 20, 1988.

The Roscoe Pound Exhibit attracts the attention of a law student.

AWARDS AND SCHOLARSHIPS

Students Honored at Awards and Scholarships Day

The Third Annual Awards and Scholarships Day was held at the College of Law on Friday, October 30, 1987. Students, faculty and alumni were present for the ceremony.

Alumni Medals of Merit were presented to those students who received the highest grade in courses during the 1986-87 academic year. Sixty-seven book award plaques were given during the ceremony along with several cash awards.

Scholarship awards were presented by Dean D'Alemberte and by several individual scholarship sponsors. Scholarship recipients are listed below.

The Alumni Medals of Merit, ordered minted by the Alumni Board of Directors two years ago, resemble Olympic medals with garnet and gold drapes and have the course, semester and year engraved on the reverse side.

William D. Wilson presented an award for Best Brief Recipient to David Wasserman (l) and an award for Best Oral Advocate to Alan Aksell (c).

Judge Jim Jorgenson presents an award to Arthur Lester.

Alums Bob Perkins, Woody Isom, Wayne Hogan, and Don Gifford applaud the award winning students.

Job Notice Bulletin Available to Alums

The Placement Office publishes an Alumni Job Notice Bulletin that is mailed out during the first or second week of each month. It contains a current listing of all job openings on file with the Placement Office. If you are interested in being placed on the mailing list to receive the Job Notice Bulletin, please contact Elora Harwood in the Placement Office, College of Law, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL 32306, or call 904/644-4495.

Placement/Alumni Affairs Update

Fall Interviewing. The Fall Interview Season was long and busy. More than 100 law firms and legal employers scheduled on-campus interview dates from September 15 to November 25, 1987. Although not all the data is in, many students have reported employment as a result of on-campus interviews, both for summer jobs and permanent associate positions.

If your firm has unfilled positions, you may want to consider interviewing on campus during the Spring semester. Dates are available through the end of March. Please call us at 904/644-4495 for additional information.

Alumni Directory. You may have received your new 1988 Alumni Directory by now. If not, watch for it! It was a long time coming, but it is up-to-date through early January, 1988. In addition, the College of Law now has its own computer file of alumni addresses. This will enable us to maintain address changes daily and will make it easier to publish the directory more often.

Admissions Update

The admissions season is once again in full swing as preparations are being made for the class entering in the Fall of 1988. Not only more, but better applications have been received this year compared to this time last year.

Once again, alumni assistance is needed to recruit first-rate students. Applicants very much appreciate individual attention and are always interested in hearing about what law school was "really" like—especially from people who have survived the experience.

Your help in recommending applicants and in recommending F.S.U. to potential students is appreciated. Please let us know of applicants in whom you have an interest. Also, please contact us at 904/644-3288 if you can help in recruiting next year's class.

Law Review Announces New Board Members and Topics for Next Edition

The Law Review is pleased to announce the selection of its Volume 16 Editorial Board. Stevan D. Mitchell was named Editor-in-Chief and Executive Editors are Chet Kaufman, Richard Getchell, and Lynda Goodgame. The Executive Writing Editor is Sam J. Smith and Articles & Notes Editors are Donald L. Bell, Miguel Delao, Deborah Jordan, Angela Nixon, Shelley Reynolds, Stephen Senn and Jonathan Sjostrom.

The new board will officially take office on January 6, 1988, and will immediately begin production of Volume 16:1. Volume 15:3 has been completed. This issue features an article by renowned Yale Professor Lea Brilmayer, and responses from Professor Mark Tushnet, Douglas Laycock, and our own Larry George. Also featured in this issue is Duncan Kennedy's Fall 1986 Ladd Lecture discussing economic reforms to alleviate substandard housing.

This year's Legislative Edition has just been published. It features a wide variety of articles on the year's most controversial and noteworthy legislative topics.

Of particular interest are feature articles on Florida's sales tax on services, Florida's new lottery, and election law reform. Student-written works include coverage of the new gun control legislation, Florida's insanity defense, and corporate support for child care. The Legislative Edition is due to be released early this year.

Sales of the Florida Style Manual have continued at a respectable pace. The manual is the definitive guide to Florida legislative materials. Copies of the manual may be obtained from the Review for $5. Call 904/644-2045 or write

The Law Review recently held the first of what is sure to be an annual picnic for members, alumni, and faculty. The event was a wonderful success—and the Review would like to thank those involved. Finally, the Law Review would like to take the opportunity to thank Professor Larry George for ten years of guidance and service as faculty advisor to the publication. His assistance will be sorely missed.

Black Law Students Association Holds Fall Reception

The annual Fall Semester Reception was hosted by the Black Law Students Association at the First District Court of Appeal on Friday, September 11, 1987.

Each year, the reception is held to introduce black law students to the faculty. This year, the faculty also met the Caribbean students who were here to study at the College of Law during the Fall semester.

Caribbean Students Bid Farewell to College of Law

On Thursday, December 10, 1987, a farewell reception was held so that faculty and staff could say goodbye to Caribbean students who had studied here this semester.

Greta Coleman of Barbados, Jerome Dean of the Bahamas, Leonard Benjamin of Antigua, and Julien Prevost from Dominica expressed their satisfaction with the program and their desire to return to Tallahassee in the future.

Salsa Holds First Annual Reception

On Tuesday, September 22, 1987, the Spanish American Law Students Association held its first reception. The event was very successful, and SALSAs plans to make it an annual affair.

SALSAs membership is now close to fifty persons. The organization is strong and growing.

Congressman Dante Fascell Addresses December Graduates

Dante Fascell, U.S. Congressman from the Nineteenth Congressional District of Florida, was the commencement speaker at the College of Law graduation ceremony in December.

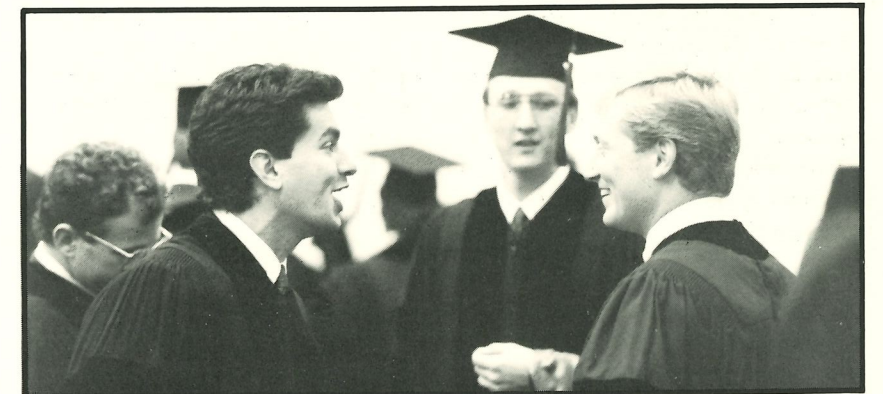

Fascell, who currently serves as Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, spoke to twenty-five graduating seniors at the Saturday afternoon ceremony on December 12, 1987. Professor Robert Kennedy gave the invocation.

Following the ceremony, graduates were honored at the first graduation reception to be held on the Village Green.

Rep. Fascell

The ceremony for 140 April graduates will be held in Ruby Diamond Auditorium on Saturday, April 30, 1988.

Law Students Express Appreciation for Alumni Funding of Library Hours

Upon learning of the reduction of the Law Library's hours of operation last fall, the Law Alumni Association voted to allocate funds to restore full operating hours. With the help of the Association and of Student Government Law Senators Joe Patner and John Sjostrom, funds were made available, and hours were extended to their previous level.

The student body has expressed its appreciation to the Alumni Association for its concern and assistance.

FSU to Host Major Conference on Trade

Professor Gabriel Wilner, Visiting Professor of International Law, is organizing a major international conference to be sponsored by the Ed Ball Chair and the College of Law.

On May 25-27, 1988, international and national policy makers will convene in Tallahassee to discuss the importance of preserving and expanding the multilateral trading system which has operated

Appellate Conference Features Brief Writing and Oral Argument Training

Florida Supreme Court Justices Rosemary Barkett and Steven Grimes highlighted the Public Defenders Advanced Appellate Advocacy Seminar which was held at the College of Law on November 13 and 14, 1987. Speaking to a group of 35 appellate public defenders from across the State, the Justices lectured and answered questions on brief writing and oral argument skills.

The Conference also included a brief critique session in which par-

Policy Studies Clinic Projects Involve Current Issues

At Policy Studies, we solve problems the old fashioned way—we think them through.

This best sums up the philosophy of the Policy Studies Clinic, the College of Law's "legal think tank." In a world where students are trained to be lawyers in an adversary system, students who work at Policy Studies have an opportunity to study objectively a variety of legal issues, issues that often have far-reaching implications. The clinic employs eight law students who serve as Policy Studies Fellows under the supervision of the Director, Professor Donna Christie, and Associate Director, Patricia Leary.

The Clinic's most significant project this year continues to be Professor Christie's grant-funded work on a State Ocean Policy. Professor Christie, the College's environmental law expert, is also serving as legal adviser to the Governor and Cabinet's Beach Access Advisory Committee. She has been drafting proposed beach access legislation as well as accompanying commentary. Policy Studies will publish a monograph on Beach Access that will include the proposed legislation, Professor Christie's commentary, and articles on beach access.

Policy Studies gives students a unique opportunity to work on timely legal questions with statewide impact. Florida has recently been the focus of national attention because of three issues: the sales tax on services, medical malpractice, and the concealed weapons law. Policy Studies has been involved in all three. During the September special session, the clinic was asked to advise the legislative leadership on two questions: whether the legislature could constitutionally repeal the services tax without replacing the revenues, and whether repeal of the services tax could be conditioned upon the approval of the voters in a statewide referendum. Associate Director Patricia Leary has written an article on the second issue for the legislative edition of the Florida State University Law Review.

On the malpractice issue, the Governor's office asked Policy Studies to prepare a comparison of the tort systems of eleven states, including Florida. The report will be of great benefit in placing Florida in a nationwide perspective and in identifying those areas of tort reform that Florida has not pursued as vigorously as it might.

The Secretary of State asked Policy Studies to prepare for concealed weapons licensees a pamphlet on the use of deadly force. The pamphlet, written in a deliberately simple and nonlegalistic question-and-answer form, uses examples from actual cases. As a result of this work, Ms. Leary has appeared on a televised panel discussion on the subject of deadly force. The program, structured as a socratic dialogue among twelve panelists, including state attorneys and members of the press, and the moderator, Fred Friendly, aired in January.

Policy Studies sponsors several conferences each year. Policy Studies' conference on Forging Partnerships in Land and Water Management, held July 31, 1987, in Orlando, was a tremendous success. It attracted nearly 200 state and local government officials, representatives of water management districts, and environmental law practitioners. The clinic has published the opening address of Thomas Pelham, Secretary of the Department of Community Affairs, entitled "The Florida Approach to Comprehensive Planning: The Opportunity for Integrating

Dispute Resolution Workshop Attracts National Figures

On February 25 and 26, 1988, some of the most prominent national figures in the alternative dispute resolution field will be in Tallahassee for a workshop entitled "Mediation in the Judicial Environment."

The workshop is being organized by Professor Jim Alfini of the FSU College of Law and is sponsored by the National Institute for Dispute Resolution and the Florida Dispute Resolution Center (a joint project of the College of Law and the Florida Supreme Court).

Pictured as they plan for the workshop are (clockwise from head of table) Professor Joseph Stulberg of City University of New York, Attorney Jim Chaplin, Dispute Resolution Fellow Jim Soltis, Assistant Director Irene Hoskins, North Carolina Trial Court Administrator Kathy Shuart, Professor and Director Jim Alfini, National Institute for Dispute Resolution Associate Linda Work, and Michael Lewis, Deputy Director of the National Institute for Dispute Resolution.

The workshop leader is Joseph Stulberg who has written numerous books and articles on the use of mediation. The participant list includes judges, court administrators, mediators and academics, all of whom have extensive experience with mediation and the courts.

Management of Land and Water Resources."

The second annual conference on Legal and Ethical Dilemmas of Health Care was held in Tallahassee on December 11, 1987. The conference, co-sponsored by Policy Studies, focused on Surrogate Parenting and the New Reproductive Technologies. On January 14 and 15, 1988, Policy Studies sponsored a conference in Tallahassee on Florida's Environmental Future: Issues 88.

In pursuit of the dual goals of enlivening the curriculum and providing more interaction with the legal community, Policy Studies also arranges speakers for seminars that are a part of the regular law school curriculum.

Kathleen Dekker Named to Fill Leon County Judgeship

"The real test will be sitting on the bench with the robe on and having to make decisions," said Kathleen Dekker of her appointment as Leon County's fourth county judge. Dekker, a Tallahassee attorney and a graduate of the FSU College of Law, was appointed by Governor Bob Martinez in November and was sworn in on Tuesday, January 5, 1988, for a one year term.

Dekker is unique in being the first woman judge to be appointed to the Leon County bench. She is one of only five women judges in Florida's Panhandle.

"I'm real excited," Dekker said. "I'll love it. It's what I envisioned: trying to decide the right thing and having the power to carry it out."

A December 1976 graduate of the College of Law, Dekker has been in private practice in Tallahassee since 1981, most recently specializing in marital and family law. Before entering private practice, she was a research aide for the First District Court of Appeal from 1978 to 1981.

Active in local bar associations, Dekker participates in Legal Aid and is a volunteer in the Guardian Ad Litem program. She has served as a volunteer moot court judge at the College of Law.

In 1981, Dekker received a Certificate of Service from the First District Court of Appeal. The Supreme Court of Florida recognized her in 1987 by presenting a Certificate of Recognition for dedication in the representation of abused and neglected children.

Dekker is married to another FSU graduate, Philip C. Claypool. They have three children, David, Joshua, and Sarah.

Ray Reynolds Achieves Success as a "California Lawyer"

As both lawyer and writer, Ray Reynolds has long sought to combine his talents. Once again, he has done so with outstanding results.

Reynolds' most recent venture led him to California in early 1987 where he became editor of the California Lawyer, a publication of the California Bar. In late 1987, the state bar made the decision to cease publication of the legal affairs magazine, and it went private, entering 1988 as a part of the Daily Journal Corporation, publishers of the Los Angeles Daily Journal.

It is the first bar magazine in the nation to be privately published.

Now editor and publisher of the award-winning magazine, Reynolds states, "With the resources of one of the nation's best and most successful legal publishing companies behind us, I'm convinced the result will be the best and most successful legal publication in the country."

All 110,000 lawyers in California will continue to receive the monthly magazine, which featured an exclusive interview with U.S. Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy conducted by Reynolds in its debut issue as a private publication.

A 1979 graduate of the College of Law, Reynolds' career has taken him from the American Bar Association in Chicago to Florida State University in Tallahassee. Now part of the California scene, he continues to make his presence felt in the area of legal publishing. It's a sure bet that this "California Lawyer" will find success in his new venture.
