RELATING TO Veterinary Medical Practice
OTHER COMMITTEES OF REFERENCE

I. SUMMARY:

Chapter 474, Florida Statutes, relates to the regulation of the practice of veterinary medicine. Provisions are included for examination and licensure of veterinarians. Premises permits show that the establishment meets certain sanitary conditions according to the rules adopted by the Board of Veterinary Medicine. Other sections deal with prohibitions and penalties, maintenance of medical records of patients by the veterinarian, and the reporting to the department of criminal violations of the act.

Proposed Committee Bill 20 would reenact Chapter 474, Florida Statutes. The first enactment of the laws regarding the practice of veterinary medicine was in 1925, at which time it became unlawful for any person to practice veterinary medicine and surgery, except castration and dehorning of cattle, an exemption which remains in the statutes today. The purpose of this practice act is to protect the public health, safety and welfare from incompetent and unlicensed practitioners. Aside from the service offered to owners of domesticated pets and animals, the practice of veterinary medicine enhances the quality of food products available to the citizens of our state by preventing and controlling disease.

- Section 474.202 This section dealing with definitions includes a definition of mobile veterinary establishment/mobile clinic that insures these units contain the same treatment facilities as those of a permanent nature. The definition for immediate supervision requires the veterinarian to be on the same premises as the supervised employee.
- Section 474.203 Exemptions under this section do not apply to persons administering to the ills of their own animals, but only a licensed veterinarian may immunize or treat for diseases which are communicable to humans.
- 3. Section 474.204 Subparagraphs referring to appointment of board members that no longer apply have been deleted.
- 4. Section 474.207 - Several changes are offered in this section dealing with licensure by examination, which include an increased cap on the examination fee not to exceed $500, prohibition of reexamination by a graduate of an unapproved college of veterinary medicine after three attempts until he obtains a certificate from the Educational Commission for Foreign Veterinary Graduates and presents it to the board. A recent graduate of an approved college would be permitted to practice under immediate supervision of a licensed veterinarian while awaiting the results of examination. If that person fails any part of the examination, he reverts to the status of any other unlicensed veterinary employee until he passes the examination and is eligible for licensure.
- 5. Section 474.213 An addition to the language in this section would clarify that persons practicing in Florida must hold licenses pursuant to the chapter.
- 6. Section 474.214 This section of the chapter deals with disciplinary proceedings. Specific language for an impaired practitioner includes provisions for reporting such person to the department. When such a report is sent to the department and there is reason to believe that a veterinarian may be impaired because of the misuse of drugs or alcohol or both, such reporting shall not constitute a complaint if the veterinarian acknowledges that: (a) he has an impairment problem, (b) he has voluntarily enrolled in a treatment program approved by the board, or, (c) withdrawn from practice or limited the scope of practice until such time as successful completion of an approved treatment program is determined by the panel. If the impaired practitioner's progress is not satisfactory as determined by the panel, then the information may be treated as a complaint, and the proper investigatory procedures initiated. A privilege against civil liability is granted to certain persons who report impaired veterinarians to the department, board, or panel.

- 7. Section 474.2145 A new section is created which relates to treatment programs for impaired professionals. Confidentiality of information is maintained, unless the impaired veterianrian is not progressing satisfactorily, at which point the disclosing of information shall constitute a complaint.
- Section 474.215 This section dealing with premises permits is amended to include a mobile clinic permit. The board is authorized to adopt minimum standards for permanent and mobile establishments.
- Section 474.216 The displaying of premises permits is expanded to include mobile clinics.
- 10. Section 474.217 The provision related to reciprocity is deleted, and provisions related to licensure by endorsement are added. Licensure by endorsement of applicants who hold valid out-ofstate veterinary licenses would include requirements that licensure in the licensing state be substantially equivalent to or more stringent than those existing in Florida at the time. Such applicants must also pass an examination on the laws and rules of Florida governing veterinary medical practice.
- 11. Section 474.2065 The section dealing with fees includes a cap of $500, for the initial application. Other fees would include reactivation of an inactive license not to exceed $50; and licensure by endorsement not to exceed $250.

II. ECONOMIC IMPACT:

A. Public:

It is anticipated by the department that there will be an increased cost of $30 per applicant for the national and clinical competency portions of the licensing examination. The present cost of such examination is $245. It can be assumed that the cost of regulation is passed on to those persons who use veterinary services.

B. Government:

The cost of administration of Chapter 474, Florida Statutes, was $247,178 for the fiscal year 1983-84. The Professional Regulation Trust Fund is the depository for fees paid by applicants and practitioners.

The department has been unable to estimate the cost of implementing and administering the impaired veterinarian provisions of this bill. However, a similar program for nurse practitioners has been administered with minimal costs.

RELATING TO Veterinary Medical Practice

I. SUMMARY:

Chapter 474, Florida Statutes, relates to the regulation of the practice of veterinary medicine. Provisions are included for examination and licensure of veterinarians. Premises permits show that the establishment meets certain sanitary conditions according to the rules adopted by the Board of Veterinary Medicine. Other sections deal with prohibitions and penalties, maintenance of medical records of patients by the veterinarian, and the reporting to the department of criminal violations of the act.

CS/SB 91 reenacts Chapter 474, Florida Statutes. The first enactment of the laws regarding the practice of veterinary medicine was in 1925, at which time it became unlawful for any person to practice veterinary medicine and surgery, except castration and dehorning of cattle, an exemption which remains in the statutes today. The purpose of this practice act is to protect the public health, safety and welfare from incompetent and unlicensed practitioners. Aside from the service offered to owners of domesticated pets and animals, the practice of veterinary medicine enhances the quality of food products available to the citizens of our state by preventing and controlling disease.

- Section 474.202 This section dealing with definitions includes a definition of mobile veterinary establishment/mobile clinic that insures these units contain the same treatment facilities as those of a permanent nature. The definition for immediate supervision requires the veterinarian to be on the same premises as the supervised employee.
- 2. Section 474.203 Exemptions under this section do not apply to persons administering to the ills of their own animals, but only a licensed veterinarian may immunize or treat for diseases which are communicable to humans. Out of state veterinarians practicing temporarily in the state are not exempt under this section.
- Section 474.207 Several changes are offered in 3. this section dealing with licensure by examination, which include an examination fee to be set by the board, prohibition of reexamination by a graduate of an unapproved college of veterinary medicine after three attempts until he obtains a certificate from the Educational Commission for Foreign Veterinary Graduates and presents it to the board. A recent graduate of an approved college would be permitted to practice under immediate supervision of a licensed veterinarian while awaiting the results of examination. If that person fails any part of the examination, he reverts to the status of any other unlicensed veterinary employee until he passes the examination and is eligible for licensure.
- Section 474.213 An addition to the language in this section would clarify that persons practicing in Florida must hold licenses pursuant to the chapter.
- 5. Section 474.214 This section of the chapter deals with disciplinary proceedings. Specific language for an impaired practitioner includes provisions for reporting such person to the department. When such a report is sent to the department and there is reason to believe that a veterinarian may be impaired because of the misuse of drugs or alcohol or both, such reporting shall not constitute a complaint if the veterinarian acknowledges that: (a) he has an impairment problem, (b) he has voluntarily enrolled in a treatment program approved by the board, or, (c) withdrawn from practice or limited the scope of practice until such time as successful completion of an approved treatment program is determined by the panel. If the impaired practitioner's progress is not satisfactory as determined by the panel, then the information may be treated as a complaint, and the proper investigatory procedures initiated. A privilege against civil liability is granted to certain persons who report impaired veterinarians to the department, board, or panel. Upon probable cause, the department has the authority to compel a mental or physical examination of the licensee.

- Section 474.215 This section dealing with premises permits is amended to include a mobile clinic permit. The board is authorized to adopt minimum standards for permanent and mobile establishments.
- 7. Section 474.216 The displaying of premises permits is expanded to include mobile clinics.
- 8. Section 474.217 The provision related to reciprocity is deleted, and provisions related to licensure by endorsement are added. Licensure by endorsement of applicants who hold valid out-ofstate veterinary licenses includes requirements that licensure in the licensing state be substantially equivalent to or more stringent than those existing in Florida at the time. Such applicants must also pass an examination on the laws and rules of Florida governing veterinary medical practice.
- 9. Section 474.219 This section deals with saving clauses.
- 10. Section 474.2065 The section dealing with fees includes a cap of $500, for the initial application. Other fees include reactivation of an inactive license not to exceed $50; licensure by endorsement not to exceed $250; and temporary licensure not to exceed $200.

- 11. Section 474.2125 Temporary licensure is provided in this section to include those veterinarians licensed in other states for the purpose of providing veterinary medical service for a specific animal owner in this state. Such license expires in 90 days.
- 12. Section 474.2141 A new section is created which relates to treatment programs for impaired professionals. Confidentiality of information is maintained, unless the impaired veterianrian is not progressing satisfactorily, at which point the disclosing of information shall constitute a complaint.
- 13. Section 474.2145 This section deals with the ability of the department to issue subpoenas duces tecum, requiring the name and address of some or all of the clients of a licensed veterinarian against whom a complaint has been filed if such information is deemed necessary by the secretary of the department.
- 14. Section 474.2185 Upon accepting licensure or making and filing a renewal for same, a veterinarian in this state is deemed to have given his consent to render a handwriting sample or to waive the confidentiality and authorize preparation and release of medical reports pertaining to the mental or physical condition of the licensee, if this information is relevant to an investigation as determined by the secretary of the department.

II. ECONOMIC IMPACT:

A. Public:

It is anticipated by the department that there will be an increased cost of $30 per applicant for the national and clinical competency portions of the licensing examination. The present cost of such examination is $245. It can be assumed that the cost of regulation is passed on to those persons who use veterinary services.

B. Government:

The cost of administration of Chapter 474, Florida Statutes, was $247,178 for the fiscal year 1983-84. The Professional Regulation Trust Fund is the depository for fees paid by applicants and practitioners.

The department has been unable to estimate the cost of implementing and administering the impaired veterinarian provisions of this bill. However, a similar program for nurse practitioners has been administered with minimal costs. III. COMMENTS:

I. SUMMARY:

A. Present Situation:

The Regulatory Sunset Act repeals chapter 474, Florida Statutes, relating to veterinary medical practice on October 1, 1985, unless the Legislature reestablishes it in the public interest.

Chapter 474, Florida Statutes, provides for the examination and licensure of public accountants in Florida. The chapter states the purpose of the law (s. 474.201, F.S.), provides definitions (s. 474.202, F.S.) and exemptions (s. 474.203, F.S.), establishes a Board of Veterinary Medicine (s. 474.204, F.S.), establishes the locale of board headquarters (s. 474.205, F.S.), and grants the board rulemaking authority (s. 474.206, F.S.). The chapter also provides for licensure by examination (s. 474.207, F.S.), license renewal (s. 474.211, F.S.), and inactive status (s. 474.212, F.S.); establishes prohibitions and penalties (s. 474.213, F.S.), grants the board disciplinary powers (s. 474.214, F.S.), requires premises permits (s. 474.215, F.S.), and requires persons to display their licenses or premises permits at their places of business (s. 474.216, F.S.). Finally, the chapter requires licensees to maintain medical records (s. 474.216, F.S.), requires the department to report criminal violations of the act to prosecuting authorities (s. 474.218, F.S.), and provides saving clauses (s. 474.219, F.S.).

B. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The provisions of chapter 474, Florida Statutes, are revived and readopted with the following sections amended as described:

- Section 474.202, Florida Statutes, is amended to include the performance of embryo transfer procedures in the definition of practice of veterinary medicine.
- Section 474.203, Florida Statutes, is amended to provide that out-of-state veterinarians practicing temporarily in Florida are not exempt from the provisions of the act.
- Section 474.204, Florida Statutes, is amended to delete certain transitional provisions relating to appointment of board members.
- Section 474.207, Florida Statutes, is amended to allow only successful examinees to continue practicing under the supervision of a licensed veterinarian until the next board meeting.
- Section 474.213, Florida Statutes, is amended to clarify that persons practicing veterinary medicine in Florida must hold licenses pursuant to the chapter.

1408

REVISED:		BILL	ΝО.	SB 91

- Section 474.214, Florida Statutes, is amended to delete redundant language and adopt the following procedure for dealing with impaired practitioners. Licensees are required to report anyone known by them to be in violation of the chapter or board rules. The reporting of an impaired practitioner is not to be treated as a complaint as long as the board's probable cause panel makes certain determinations concerning the impaired veterinarian's progress in an approved treatment program and the nature of the violation. If the panel finds the impaired veterinarian's progress unsatisfactory, it may treat the information as a complaint. Upon successful completion of a treatment program, a license previously relinguished shall be returned to the veterinarian. A privilege against civil liability is granted to certain persons who report impaired veterinarians to the department, board, or panel.
- Section 474.215, Florida Statutes, is amended to: require mobile veterinary clinics to have mobile clinic permits, direct the board to adopt minimum standards concerning sanitary conditions and physical plant for mobile clinics, and provide a 30-day grace period within which persons operating veterinary establishments without the necessary permits may apply for such permits upon payment of a late fee.
- Section 474.216, Florida Statutes, is amended to require mobile clinic permits to be displayed.
- Section 474.217, Florida Statutes, is amended to provide for licensure by endorsement of applicants who hold valid out-of-state veterinary licenses if the requirements for licensure in the licensing state were substantially equivalent to or more stringent than those existing in Florida at the time. Such applicants must also pass an examination on the laws and rules of Florida governing voluntary medical practice.
- Section 474.219, Florida Statutes, is amended to change the effective date of the saving clause.
- Section 474.2065, Florida Statutes, is created to direct the board to establish certain fees. Certain fee caps are established.
- Section 474.2125, Florida Statutes, is created to provide for temporary licensure of out-of-state licensed veterinarians who wish to provide veterinary services for a specific animal owner in Florida. Such licenses are to be valid for 90 days.
- Section 13 of the bill provides for the automatic repeal of chapter 474, Florida Statutes, on October 1, 1995, and for the review of the chapter pursuant to section 11.61, Florida Statutes.
- The effective date of October 1, 1985, is provided.

II. ECONOMIC IMPACT AND FISCAL NOTE:

A. Public:

The inclusion of the performance of embryo transfer procedures in the definition of the practice of veterinary medicine will result in such procedures being done solely by licensed veterinarians. To the extent that licensed veterinarians will charge more or less for such services than non-licensed persons do or would, the cost of such services will be affected.

The requirement that out-of-state licensed veterinarians who wish to practice temporarily in Florida apply for temporary licensure will result in such persons having to incur the DATE: January 22, 1985 expense of applying for such licensure and taking the Florida veterinary laws and rules examination.

The provision prohibiting unsuccessful examinees from continuing to practice under a licensed veterinarian's supervision may result in a loss or reduction of income for such persons.

The impaired veterinarian provision will require impaired veterinarians to incur the cost of participating in approved treatment programs and will result in a loss or reduction of income for the period of time during which an impaired veterinarian withdraws from the practice and relinquishes his license. The approach contained in the bill will also be more expensive to administer than that presently used, and licensees will bear the additional cost through fees paid to the department.

The mobile clinic permit requirement will result in operators of such clinics having to comply with standards adopted by the board for such permits and pay a $25 permit fee.

The inclusion of a 30-day grace period for persons operating a veterinary establishment without the required premises or mobile clinic permit will result in such persons having to pay a board established late fee. Such persons may, however, avoid the expense of responding to an administrative complaint resulting from such a violation.

The provision establishing licensure by endorsement will permit certain out-of-state veterinarians to become licensed in Florida without having to incur the expense of applying for and passing the entire Florida licensure examination.

It is assumed that the cost of regulation is ultimately passed on to consumers of veterinary medical services in the form of higher fees for those services. Thus, any increase or decrease in the cost of complying with the provisions of the act will likely affect the cost of veterinary medical services.

B. Government:

The Department of Professional Regulation (DPR) is unable to estimate the cost of implementing and administering the impaired veterinarian provision in the bill, although it states that it has incurred minimal costs in administering a similar impaired pharmacist program.

According to the DPR, the one-time $25 fee for premises and mobile clinic permits provided for in the bill is not adequate to cover the cost of both initial and subsequent inspections. The DPR estimates that it incurs costs of $17.50 per inspection. There are presently 1.057 premises permits, and the DPR estimates that 54 new permits are issued each year. The DPR estimates that there are approximately 15-20 mobile clinics in the state that would be required to apply for mobile clinic permits under the terms of the bill The DPR provided the following figures concerning the cost of inspections.

1,057 Current Permits x $25 One-time Permit Fee $26,425	$ 26,425
1,057 Initial Inspections x$17.50 Cost Per Inspection $18,497.50	$(18,498)
Balance Available for 2nd Inspection Cost of 2nd Inspection	$ 7,927 $(18,498)
Deficit end of 3rd Year	$(10,571)

REVISED:
DATE:	January 22, 1985

According to the DPR, the present $250 fee cap for application and examination will not be adequate to cover an anticipated increase of $30 per candidate for the written national and clinical competency portions of the licensing examination. The DPR states that unless the fee cap is increased and the board is thereby permitted to pass increased examination costs on to applicants, the board will operate at a deficit in the exam area.

III. COMMENTS:

According to the DPR, a premises permit renewal fee of $20 per biennium would provide revenue adequate to fund the department's reinspection program.

The Office of Examination Services of the DPR has projected an increase in the cost of the written national and clinical competency portions of the exam of approximately $30 per candidate. The current examination fee cap is $250 and the current fee is $245.

This bill was drafted in accordance with staff recommendations provided as a result of the sunset review of chapter 474, Florida Statutes, relating to regulation of veterinary medical practice.

Chapter 474, Florida Statutes, provides for the examination and licensure of veterinarians in Florida. - The effective date of October 1, 1985, is provided.

II. ECONOMIC IMPACT AND FISCAL NOTE:

A. Public:

Presently, applicants for licensure must pay the following examination fees: complete examination - $245; written exam on the practice act and rules - $75; clinical competency test -$55; and National Board written exam - $115. Current reexamination fees are: National Board written exam - $115; clinical competency exam - $55; and written exam on practice act and rules - $50. Licensees must pay the following fees: initial license - $90 for 2 years; license renewal - $90 biennially; reactivation of inactive license - $50; and renewal of inactive license - $50. Section 11.61, Florida Statutes, DATE: January 22, 1985 provides for the automatic repeal of chapter 474, Florida Statutes, on October 1, 1985. Therefore, applicants and licensees would no longer incur these costs after that date. However, this bill revives and readopts chapter 474, Florida Statutes, which will result in applicants and practitioners continuing to be subject to these fees after October 1, 1985.

The inclusion of the performance of embryo transfer procedures in the definition of the practice of veterinary medicine will result in such procedures being done solely by licensed veterinarians. To the extent that licensed veterinarians will charge more or less for such services than non-licensed persons do or would, the cost of such services will be affected.

The requirement that out-of-state licensed veterinarians who wish to practice temporarily in Florida apply for temporary licensure will result in such persons having to incur the expense of applying for such licensure and taking the Florida veterinary laws and rules examination.

The provision prohibiting unsuccessful examinees from continuing to practice under a licensed veterinarian's supervision may result in a loss or reduction of income for such persons.

The impaired veterinarian provision will require impaired veterinarians to incur the cost of participating in approved treatment programs and will result in a loss or reduction of income for the period of time during which an impaired veterinarian withdraws from the practice and relinquishes his license. The approach contained in the bill will also be more expensive to administer than that presently used, and licensees will bear the additional cost through fees paid to the department.

The mobile clinic permit requirement will result in operators of such clinics having to comply with standards adopted by the board for such permits and pay a $25 permit fee.

The inclusion of a 30-day grace period for persons operating a veterinary establishment without the required premises or mobile clinic permit will result in such persons having to pay a board established late fee. Such persons may, however, avoid the expense of responding to an administrative complaint resulting from such a violation.

The provision establishing licensure by endorsement will permit certain out-of-state veterinarians to become licensed in Florida without having to incur the expense of applying for and passing the entire Florida licensure examination.

It is assumed that the cost of regulation is ultimately passed on to consumers of veterinary medical services in the form of higher fees for those services. Thus, any increase or decrease in the cost of complying with the provisions of the act will likely affect the cost of veterinary medical services.

B. Government:

The cost of administering chapter 474, Florida Statutes, in FY 1983-84 was $247,178. Currently, the costs are paid for through the fees paid by applicants and practitioners and deposited in the Professional Regulation Trust Fund. Under current law, after October 1, 1985, these costs would no longer be incurred by state government. This bill reenacts chapter 474, Florida Statutes, and would cause state administrative costs to continue after October 1, 1985.

The Department of Professional Regulation (DPR) is unable to estimate the cost of implementing and administering the impaired veterinarian provision in the bill, although it states that it has incurred minimal costs in administering a similar impaired pharmacist program.

According to the DPR, the present $250 fee cap for application and examination will not be adequate to cover an anticipated increase of $30 per candidate for the written national and clinical competency portions of the licensing examination. I. SUMMARY:

A. Present Situation:

The Regulatory Sunset Act repeals chapter 474, Florida Statutes, relating to veterinary medical practice on October 1, 1985, unless the Legislature reestablishes it in the public interest.

Chapter 474, Florida Statutes, provides for the examination and licensure of veterinarians in Florida. The chapter states the purpose of the law (s. 474.201, F.S.), provides definitions (s. 474.202, F.S.) and exemptions (s. 474.203, F.S.), establishes a Board of Veterinary Medicine (s. 474.204, F.S.), establishes the locale of board headquarters (s. 474.205, F.S.), and grants the board rulemaking autority (s. 474.206, F.S.) The chapter also provides for licensure by examination (s. 474.207, F.S.), license reneval (s. 474.211, F.S.), and inactive status (s. 474.212, F.S.); establishes prohibitions and penalties (s. 474.213, F.S.), grants the board disciplinary powers (s 474.214, F.S.), requires premises permits (s. 474.215, F.S.), and requires persons to display their licenses or premises permits at their places of business (s. 474.216, F.S.). Finally, the chapter requires licensees to maintain medical records (s. 474.217, F.S.), requires the department to report criminal violations of the act to prosecuting authorities (s. 474.218, F.S.), and provides saving clauses (s. 474.219, F.S.).

B. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The provisions of chapter 474, Florida Statutes, are revived and readopted with the following sections amended as described:

- Section 474.202, Florida Statutes, is amended to provide definitions of "immediate supervision" and "mobile veterinary establishment."
- Section 474 203, Florida Statutes, is amended to provide that out-of-state veterinarians practicing temporarily in Florida are not exempt from the provisions of the act. The section is further amended to provide that only licensed veterinarians may immunize or treat an animal for diseases which are communicable to humans and which are of public health significance.

II. ECONOMIC IMPACT AND FISCAL NOTE:

A. Public:

Presently, applicants for licensure must pay the following examination fees: complete examination - $245; written exam on the practice act and rules - $75; clinical competency test -$55; and National Board written exam - $115 Current reexamination fees are: National Board written exam - $115; clinical competency exam - $55; and written exam on practice act and rules - $50. Licensees must pay the following fees: initial license - $90 for 2 years; license renewal - $90 biennially; reactivation of inactive license - $50; and renewal of inactive license - $50. Section 11.61, Florida Statutes, provides for the automatic repeal of chapter 474, Fiorida Statutes, on October 1, 1985. Therefore, applicants and licensees would no longer incur these costs after that date. However, this bill revives and readopts chapter 474, Florida Statutes, which will result in applicants and practitioners continuing to be subject to these fees after October 1, 1985.

The provision that only a veterinarian may immunize or treat an animal for diseases which are communicable to humans and which are of public health significance will result in animal owners having to employ veterinarians to perform services the owners may themselves presently perform.

The requirement that out-of-state licensed veterinarians who wish to practice temporarily in Florida apply for temporary licensure will result in such persons having to incur the expense of applying for such licensure and taking the Florida veterinary laws and rules examination.

The requirement that graduates of unaccredited colleges of veterinary medicine who have failed the licensing exam three times must obtain an ECFVG certificate before taking the exam a fourth time will result in such persons having to incur the expense of obtaining such a certificate if they want to take the exam a fourth time.

The provision prohibiting unsuccessful examinees from continuing to practice under a licensed veterinarian's supervision may result in a loss or reduction of income for such persons.

The provision authorizing the DPR to, upon probably cause, compel a licensee to submit to a mental or physical exam will result in such licensees having to incur the cost of such exams.

The mobile clinic permit requirement will result in operators of such clinics having to comply with standards adopted by the board for such permits and pay a $25 permit fee.

The inclusion of a 30-day grace period for persons operating a veterinary establishment without the required premises or mobile clinic permit will result in such persons having to pay a board established late fee. Such persons may, however, avoid the expense of responding to an administrative complaint resulting from such a violation.

The provision establishing licensure by endorsement will permit certain out-of-state veterinarians to become licensed in Florida without naving to incur the expense of applying for and passing the entire Fiorida licensure examination.

The impaired veterinarian provision will require impaired veterinarians to incur the cost of participating in approved treatment programs. The approach contained in the bill will also be more expensive to administer than that presently used, and licensees will bear the additional cost through fees paid to the department.

It is assumed that the cost of regulation is ultimately passed on to consumers of veterinary medical services in the form of higher fees for those services. Thus, any increase or decrease in the cost of complying with the provisions of the act will likely affect the cost of veterinary medical services.

B. Government:

The cost of administering chapter 474, Florida Statutes, in FY 1983-84 was $247,178. Currently, the costs are paid for through the fees paid by applicants and practitioners and deposited in the Professional Regulation Trust Fund. Under current law, after Octoper 1, 1985, these costs would no longer be incurred by state government. This bill reenacts chapter 474, Florida Statutes, and would cause state administrative costs to continue after October 1, 1985.

The Department of Professional Regulation (DPR) is unable to estimate the cost of implementing and administering the impaired veterinarian provision in the bill, although it states that the cost of administering the impaired nurses program, after which the impaired veterinarian program has been modeled, was $15,749 for the period of July 1, 1984 through February 14, 1985. This figure represents OPS payments for the impaired nurses consultant and program expenses. According to the DPR, the cost of the program has been paid from the nursing account in the Professional Regulation Trust Fund. The DPR states that as of January 15, 1985, 68 nurses were participating in the program. The DPR, however, expects that there will be fewer participants in the impaired veterinarian program because there are fewer licensed veterinarians than licensed nurses in the state. If the consultant is paid on an hourly basis, a lower rate of participation will likely result in the impaired veterinarians program being less expensive than the hursing program has been.

According to the DPR, the one-time $25 fee for premises and mobile clinic permits provided for in the bill is not adequate to cover the cost of both initial and subsequent inspections. The DPR estimates that it incurs costs of $17.50 per inspection. There are presently 1,057 premises permits, and the DPR estimates that 54 new permits are issued each year. The DPR estimates that there are approximately 15-20 mobile clinics in the state that would be required to apply for mobile clinic permits under the terms of the bill. The DPR provided the following figures concerning the cost of inspections. REVISED: June 10, 1985

DATE: April 4, 1985

1,057 Current Permits x $25 One-time Permit Fee $26,425	$ 26,425

Balance Available for 2nd Inspection Cost of 2nd Inspection	$ 7,927 $(18,498)
Deficit end of 3rd Year	$(10,571)

According to the DPR, the present $250 fee cap for application and examination will not be adequate to cover an anticipated increase of $30 per candidate for the written national and clinical competency portions of the licensing examination. The bill increases the fee cap to $500 which will authorize the board to increase the examination fee as necessary.

III. COMMENTS:

According to the DPR, a premises permit renewal fee of $20 per biennium would provide revenue adequate to fund the department's reinspection program.

The Office of Examination Services of the DPR has projected an increase in the cost of the written national and clinical competency portions of the exam of approximately $30 per candidate. The current examination fee cap is $250 and the current fee is $245.

This bill was passed by the legislature and ordered enrolled on May 30, 1985.

IV. AMENDMENTS:

None.
